

50 Ways to Explore Nature in Your Community

Exploring nature doesn't have to be limited to hiking, camping or heading to the mountains for a weekend getaway (though those are all fine ideas).

Connecting with nature is as simple as heading out the back door. Why not try one of these ideas?

1. Go cloud watching
2. Build a fort
3. Climb a tree
4. Roar at the moon
5. Go on a nature scavenger hunt
6. Plant a garden
7. Create a backyard beach
8. Explore a flower
9. Run barefoot through the grass
10. Dig in the dirt
11. Watch ants march
12. Campout in your backyard
13. Tour your neighbor's yard
14. Take a color walk
15. Jump in puddles
16. Go birdwatching
17. Bake mudcakes
18. Raise a caterpillar; release a butterfly
19. Build a fairy house
20. Make leaf, rock or bark rubbings
21. Start a backyard field guide
22. Create rock art
23. Gaze at the stars
24. Plant a tree from seed
25. Play with sticks
26. Build snow or sand animals
27. Watch a sunset
28. Go butterfly watching
29. Host a backyard garden tour
30. Make a moon journal
31. Run through a pile of leaves
32. Start a seed collection
33. Paint with mud
34. Take a flower walk
35. Create a fairy garden
36. Plant a flower
37. Search for spider webs
38. Go on a backyard safari
39. Explore a tree
40. Design a backyard hiking trail
41. Create a treasure map
42. Enjoy a backyard campfire
43. Go on a bird scavenger hunt
44. Make a birdfeeder
45. Start a nature journal
46. Paint rocks
47. Create land art
48. Take a compass walk
49. Make sand or snow angels
50. Go on a backyard bug hunt

For more ideas and inspiration to get you and your family outside and connecting with nature, visit:

LetsGoChipper.com